

The Bruce Billetin

Doing it for Bill since 2014

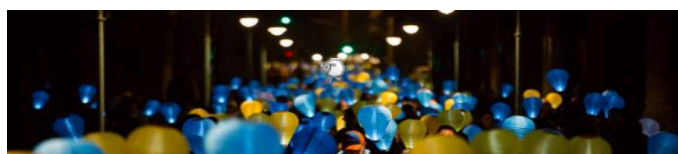

ISSUE #109: Monday 9th October – Monday 16th October

Congratulations to our IB runners for pushing themselves to their limits and beyond over the weekend! The hard work they put into training was reflected in the results. Also, a big congratulations must go to all our coaches, coordinators, and volunteers who made the event possible. Finally, thanks to all who came to endpoint to support the best college at ANU, we hope you had a fun day.

There are 4 sheep
in this Billetin

WHAT'S ON IN CANBERRA

CANBERRA LIGHT THE NIGHT 2017

Kingston Foreshore, 4.0km from CBD
13 Oct 2017

The Leukemia Foundation's 'Light the Night' event is now in its 10th year of operation. They're held in most major cities in Australia and involve the community doing a walk while holding lanterns to raise awareness of leukemia. Yellow lanterns are held to remember loved ones lost to cancer, and blue ones are held in support of those suffering from it.

TOP ACTS: ANU OPEN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

High Court of Australia, 2.4km from CBD
15 Oct 2017

Performers from ANU's Open School of Music will be packing out the High Court of Australia for a free concert to give them some practice for their upcoming recitals. Check it out for an afternoon of beautiful music at no cost!

IAC PRESENTS...

CHOIR

CHECK OUT OUR FACEBOOK EVENT FOR MORE DETAILS

6-8pm Tuesday @ Johns

Walking group from the foyer at 5:45pm

Interhall Choir is IAC's final event of the year and Bruce will be there in full strength to win some points for the Arts Shield.

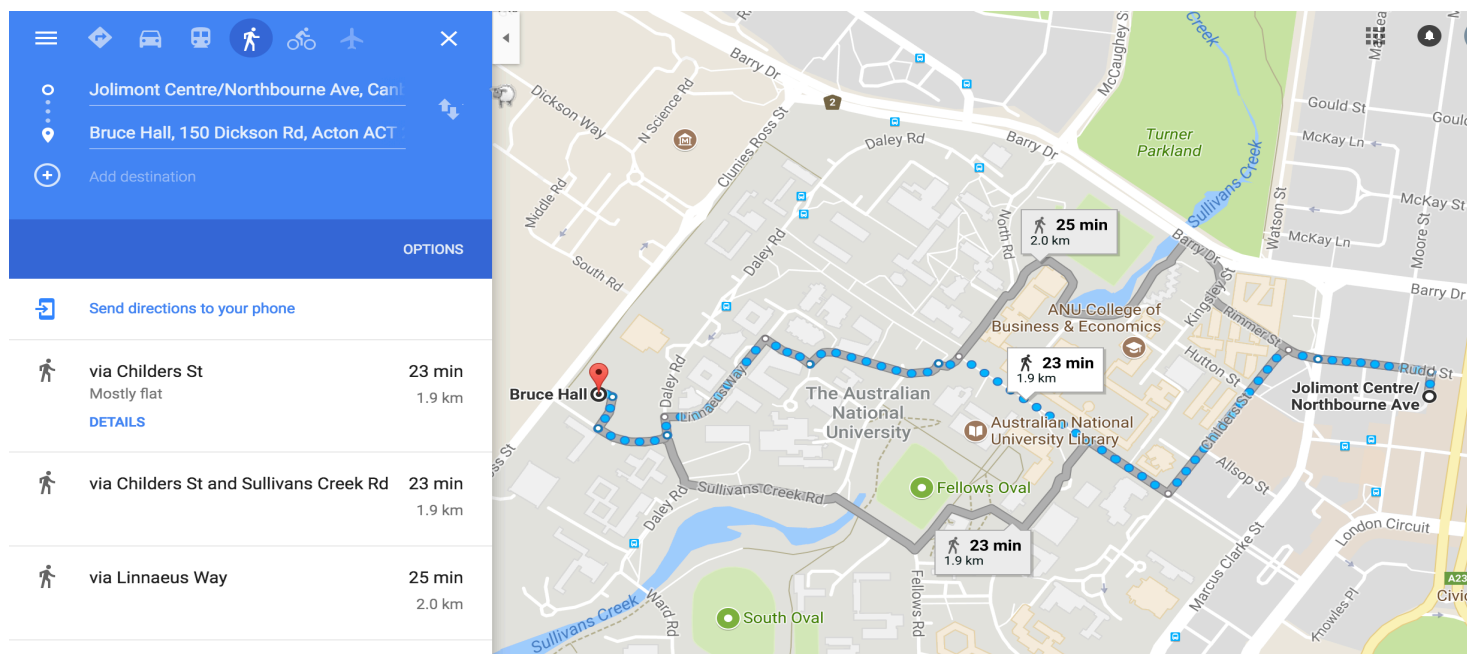

Our choir has been rehearsing for months so please come along to support them. They've even gone to the effort of doing a full show for some musicians in Bruce to get feedback on how they are sounding.

We need to make sure that we get some solid crowds at events like this, not just our sports events like IB Endpoint, so please make some time in your day for it.

Each choir will perform a short repertoire of songs and the results will be announced at the end of the night.

See you there!

An unfortunate Brucie has become the third person at an ANU college to starve to death this month after trying to walk from the Jolimont Centre to Bruce because they were unable to secure a lift from a friend. Many people describe the 1.9km journey as a trip far too long to take by foot, and the $4 Uber charge as an exorbitant fee to cough up when instead they can just exploit the good nature of their friends with cars for free.

A coronial inquest into the death was launched after it was revealed that the deceased resident had posted in Bruce Hall Banter begging for a lift, but none of the 889 members of the Facebook group cared enough to come to his aid. Preliminary findings have revealed that the resident was carrying a small overnight bag filled with 3kg of clothes from the person's weekend trip to their home on Sydney's North Shore, and furthermore it had rained on the morning of the trip. These results have sent many members of the wider Australian community into uproar.

"Nobody should have to carry their luggage that far" sobbed the deceased's mother. "It probably would have broken his back if he'd taken it more than 100 metres, let alone a smidgen under 2 kilometres across ANU campus. Also, it had rained in the morning so the ground was probably wet! He shouldn't have had to risk getting mud on his brand-new R.M. Williams boots"

Others in the community have agreed with this sentiment, and many have chipped in their two cents to the Billetin reporters. "You can't seriously have expected him to walk it can you?" asked Maria. "It's 23 minutes long! It makes so much more sense for him to force one of his mates to walk 5 minutes to the Dickson car park, drive 5 minutes over to Jolimont, pick him up, drive 5 minutes back, and then walk 5 minutes from the car park to Bruce. He probably even offered to give the driver a hug or some friendship points or something, I can't believe he was let down by everyone".

Breaking news: final results from the coronial inquest have been released. The cause of death was natural selection.

1. Where was the first Hard Rock Café opened?
2. How many publishers rejected 'Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone'?
3. What year was Nelson Mandela released from prison?
4. What is the melting point of ice in Fahrenheit?
5. In what year did the Titanic sink?

Trivia

6. What is the national animal of Scotland?
7. How many moons does Venus have?
8. A flamboyance is a group of what animal?
9. Where is the world's largest active volcano?
10. What is the capital of South Sudan?

1. London 2. Twelve 3. 1990 4. 32°F 5. 1912 6. Unicorn 7. None 8. Flamingos 9. Hawaii 10. Juba

