Seeing back to the Big Bang – the SKA telescope's unlimited potential

Nobel Laureate Professor Brian Schmidt, Professor Brian Boyle and Dr Lisa Harvey-Smith, with forum host ABC 666 presenter Genevieve Jacobs, will tackle one of the most exciting science and technology projects of this century, the Square Kilometre Array (SKA) telescope.

Based in remote Western Australia and South Africa the SKA will be the largest and most powerful radio-telescope ever built when complete, and has almost unimaginable potential.

Please join us for this free public forum, as three inspiring Australians talk about a project that will change the way we think about our place in the universe.
