CONGRATU-FREAKIN-LATIONS to the Bruce band for slaying the stage on Thursday night! Your hard work certainly paid off and we were all incredibly proud. Below are the final points for the night:

Burgmann – 24 points
B&G – 21 points
Bruce – 18 points
Griffin – 18 points
Ursies – 12 points

Also (to blatantly steal from Betty's banter post) another massive thank-you to Chris, Hugh, Vaidehi, the SRs, Buttery staff, admin staff and all volunteers who made the night possible. Get keen for more awesome arts events throughout the year; great to see all the year levels integrating so intimately! Get involved and maybe you'll feel that same Bruce love!

Ask Anne: How to Show Your Mum You Still Love Her This Mothers' Day

Wow. You didn't know Mother's day was this Sunday the 10th, did you. I guess I understand, we can't all be the cake-baking wonder-child I am. Lol, I don't even try. Must have something to do with me having two wonder-child siblings. I digress; here are some tips for how to reassure your mum or mother-figure that just because you now love Daryl Braithwaite a little more, doesn't mean you love her any less.

1. Pick up the Phone

Turn this potentially tedious task into a fun game by forming your entire side of the conversation from the lyrics to Stevie Wonder's classic "I Just Called to Say I Love You".

2. Send her a Gift

It's hard to find the right gift to give to the person who gave you the gift of life. I usually whip up a quick croquembouche, but if that's a little too hard, try something more suited to your skill level. Maybe some fairy bread? Only if you think you can.

3. Utilise Social Media and the Internet

Ok pause for a genuine anecdote from Joff's life: on my birthday last year, my dad did nought but send me a link to an e-card of a cartoon Barack Obama singing me a personalised happy birthday. It was kind of weirdly glorious. Definitely would rate this underappreciated avenue of love-sharing.
