

The Bruce Billetin

Doing it for Bill since 2014

ISSUE #87: Monday 6th March – Monday 13th March

In a much appreciated abuse of power, our lovely politicians in Canberra have ensured that there is an abundance of public holidays in the ACT so they have lots of long weekends to travel on taxpayers' money. While you may not have easy access to funds like Sussan Ley, enjoy your long weekend at Bruce anyway!

There are 4 sheep
in this Billetin

WHAT'S ON IN CANBERRA

While the Canberra Symphony Orchestra doesn't usually get our excitement levels racing, they're putting on a FREE concert of ABBA music in Commonwealth Park on Sunday the 12th. With the show starting at 7:30pm, it's the perfect opportunity to watch sunset at the lake and enjoy the good vibes with that hot guy/girl you've had your eyes on since O Week.

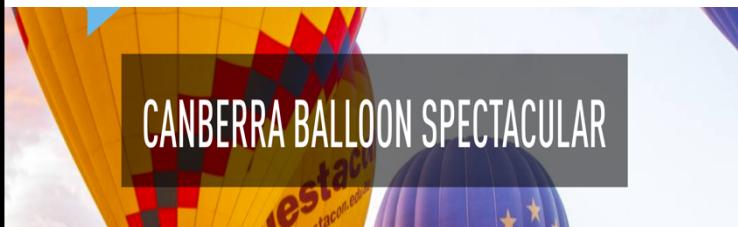

Head to the Old Bus Depot in Kingston on Sunday 12th March for the hippest markets in town. With fashion, homewares, furniture, jewellery, and other accessories, you'll be roaming around for hours. Brodburger (one of the best burger joints in Canberra) is right next door so make it a day trip and have lunch there too.

International Women's Day

5:30-6:30pm Wednesday the 8th
Sir Roland Wilson Building

Celebrate International Women's Day with a public lecture from Dr Kakenya Ntaiya; a globally recognised leader in education. She is highly acclaimed for her work in the Kakenya Centre For Excellence, which empowers young Kenyan girls through education. A requirement of attending the school is that the girls' parents agree that their children will not be married before they graduate, or undergo female circumcision.

Starting at 6:15am daily from 11-19 March, pilots will be filling their balloons with leftover hot air from the promises of reasonably affordable rent at ANU colleges, and setting off into the sky. The view is best appreciated from the Old Parliament House lawns, but you can see them from most places around the lake as they will be even higher than your chances of having a terrible time at Acads on a Saturday night.

Commencement 2017

After much anticipation, commencement was finally upon us. Will Bailey's troupe of volunteers had done a fantastic job with the balloons, streamers, and the decorative rock in the middle of the synthetic grass. The drinks were flowing fast thanks to a nonchalant attitude towards RSA regulations; as proven by Dan Hellig-Smith chugging a glass of wine in one go to the delight of a bartender who responded with a hearty "that's my man" and a speedy refill. Saxon's speech warmed our hearts and filled us with inspiration for the academic year ahead, which quickly turned into annoyance as Ben Rada Martin inflated his ego with another HD average. Those who braved walking across the real grass in high heels almost broke their ankles on the uneven surface, and it serves them right to be honest; read the signs you drongos. Any injuries were quickly forgotten when the post dinner entertainment arrived and we were treated to the sexy sight of Alex Brown's voluptuous figure in a mankini. The underwear he threw out of his window were retrieved by Brody Caddis with such enthusiasm that many people began feeling grateful that we don't have a communal clothesline. As people began getting sloppier, huge hunks of cheese gained popularity as the best drunken feed, but Rory Langford killed this trend after throwing his up in the air and having it confiscated. Nevertheless, food was in abundance and many a Packardian got the most out of their $15 tickets by taking at least two trays of desserts back to their fridge. If you missed seeing any of the above go check out the drone footage of it; Big Brother is always watching.

1. What was William Shakespeare's hometown?
2. Who voiced the character of Woody in the Toy Story series?
3. Gouda cheese comes from which country?
4. The novel 'The Life of Pi' takes place in which ocean?
5. How many time zones are spanned by Russia?
6. Which sport was named after a pie company?

Trivia

7. Who is the Greek god of love?
8. What shape is the Milky Way?
9. What is tattooed on Popeye's arm?
10. Who created the Simpsons?

